Today there are three tolerable hotels place, besides a dozen tiendas, cafes and casinos. The last-named popular resorts Spanish for club-houses) which are such prominent features of all Spanish-American cities, are practically aumerous in Cienfuegos, to the detriment of domestic institutons. The finest club house n Cuba is found here, and, strange to say, is owned and frequented by up wards of five hundred Chinamen. Its president is an almond-eyed Celestial, was educated at Harvard, and speaks a good deal better English than many Englishmen, with their "cownts" and "donches knows." The place is worth visiting, being fully up to its kind in San Francisco. A bread hallway, paved with white marble, teads to a magnificent marble-tiled and pillared room, which opens into an extensive courtyard, where paims and pomegranates flurish around a central founcasionally the smoke of heathen wor-Catholic city. It is not much of a palace, according to American ideas, and will need rebuilding to make it a fit abode for Prince Charming Dusenbury and his aides-de-camp. It is flanked by a long line of barracks, now filled with Spanish soldiers making ready for departure every mother's son of them fruit, under-sized and dispirited, like Cassius, "with a lean and hungry look." Not far away is the opera house, a quaint, open-air theatre; the market place, town hall, military and public hospitals (both of the latter filled to overflowing) and the famous palace of the Segundo Cabo, or military commander. The letter is more of a prison than a "palace," with its enormously thick walls, double doors always shut and with sentinels pacing before them, and little barred windows high up under the eaves, which, like closed eyes, disclose no secrets. There are dungeons below it, and secret passages connecting with the forts and prisons; and gruesome tales are whispered of deeds ommitted therein which would shame the darkest days of the Spanish inquisition of political prisoners, whose only crime is love of Cuba libre, compelled by nameconfess of sins they never committed.

The central plaza is a fine, large square, lighted by electricity, with erroneous ornamental gas lamps set at intervals. Its road pavement of marble tiles is guarded by lion-surmounted pillars, and pedestals here and there support whitewashed statues. There is also a fine alameda wherein it is the fashion to drive or promenade on certain afternoons of the get a general idea of the surroundings you should climb to the top of Reservoir Hill, out change the only commanding point in the vicinity, from which the city stretches west couple of miles, while countryward are the plantations, with their neat villas and white-wailed sugar mills, fields of yellowing cane and scattered groups of paims. HOW WOOD MANAGES THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY

He Takes the Cubans Completely Into Confidence.

PUTTING THEM ON HONOR

Why They Object to Sending Revenues to Havana.

Washington, Jan. 18.-General Leonard Wood, military commander of the department of Santiago, was before the senate comitte on military affairs today. He gave a detailed account of his operations quickly forthcoming, followed by other tiago and also gave his estimate of the military force necessary to maintain order in the island. On the latter poin he expressed the opinion that for some time the 7,500 men now in the province of Santiago should be continued, but that after a time 5,000 would be sufficient for the service. He considered, however, that a military force would be necessary to the aintenance of order for some years sand said it should be sufficient effectually and quickly to check any trouble before it could gain headway. This remark applied to the island as a whole, and he tho as many as 50,000 troos should be stationed throughout Cuba. With proper pr caution and tact he did not anticipate trouble, and he believed that the insur gent forces would rapidly disintegrate i all parts of the island. Santiago had been a great stronghold of the Cuban insurgents under Garcia, but they had now practically disbanded.

Outlining his mode of governing the province, he said he had made no appointments to office except upon the remendations of Cubans, and that he had in all cases put them upon their honor in making such recommendations. He had shown absolute trust in them in al matters, going among them always unarmed and leaving the books of the ad ministration always open to their inspection. He had Cubans in all departments and his private secretary had at one time been a member of Gomez's staff. Thus they knew how their money had been xpended and knew just what he was doing as their governor

General Wood said that his first effort had been to encourage the people of all the towns to establish self government The eight-hour clause was also reported and he had been especially zealous in having them select their local officers, open schools and establish courts, build roads, ets., and in cases where they did not have the money for these purposes he had the Monongahela house and a scale formu- aided them by making contributions from the general fund. He had found thopeople especially jealous of their rights. At 2 o'clock the joint convention opened in this respect, and the recent public meetings and protests against sending their revenues to Havana were due to this feel-

General Wood spoke especially of the stablishment of schools and the building of roads. He said he had 2,000 men making roads, and that he was geting many schools started. Replying to a estion from Senator Hawley he said the ple were anxious for the searation of the church and state in educational matters, and that they seemed to want to be like Americans in this as well as other
